BIG TIME JUST AHEAD
FOR BOARD OF TRADE

Annual Shad Bake to Be Held at Chesapeake Beach Saturday,
May 23.

Plans for the twentieth annual shad bake of the Washington Board of Trade were practically completed at a meeting of the committee on arrangements, held in the rooms of the board last evening. The celebration is to be held Saturday, May 23, at Chesapeake Beach. The committee anticipates a larger attendance than ever before in the history of the organization.

Novel rather than strictly athletic events, music by the Soldiers' Home Band and the shad bake are to be features of the outing. The dinner is to be under the management of Frank Farnham of the Chesapeake Catering Company.

Morning and Afternoon Trains.

Two trains are to carry the business men to the resort, the first leaving the District line station at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, with the second starting at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Those who will take the early train will be at the Casino at 1:30 o'clock. Those in the second party will feast upon the arrival of the train.

In order to insure a wide distribution of prizes this year, the board will in addition to the usual prizes, have a number of prizes which will be allowed to take part in another. The committee on prizes, of which the chairman is E. J. Waters, has obtained donations from a large number of merchants. These are to be put on exhibition in the windows of Farnham, Bridget & Co., 701 street and Pennsylvania avenue, from Friday next to May 15.

Prizes Contributed.

Following is a list of prizes contributed: Gentlemen's silver handle silk umbrella, silver mounted decauer and six silver mounted glasses, pair gold cuff buttons, silver ash receiver, silver mounted cut glass individual drinking set, two mahogany candlesticks, large character doll baby, stag handle carving set, steel flaring red and red, gentlemen's suit case, five-pound box candy, gold fountain pen, five-pound box candy, large mounted bird, $5 order for cut flowers, refinishing floor in room, two $5.50 boxes of cigars, large palm, smoker's cabinet, $5.50 boxes of cigars, $5 order for cut flowers, two $3.50 boxes of cigars, order for $1 hat, two $3.50 boxes cigars, stag, handle penknives, safety razor, pearl handle penknife, base ball bat, $5 order for cut flowers, leather covered flask, silver match box, stag handle penknife, leather covered flask, paper cutter, beer stein, and four weeks' laundry gratia for members of winning ball team.

THE NATIONAL GUARD

THERE has been an enormous increase in the enlistments in the National Guard of the District of Columbia as a result of the activities of the United States forces in Mexico. As soon as the reports were circulated of the possibility of the organized militia being called into service for duty, either along the Mexican border or in Mexico, both officers and enlisted men of the National Guard spread out their lines and began to urge men, desirous of going to the front, to enlist in the National Guard.

Then there are many patriotic men, young and old, who are always ready to take the field in an engagement between this country and a foreign power, who did not need urging. These appeared at the armories of the National Guard in various parts of the city. Some of them were regulars in the National Guard, while others contented themselves with enlisting in the reserve corps, which, while permitting their members to go to camp once a year, and assuring them a place in the National Guard in the event it is called into service, does not compel them to attend the routine weekly drills, which is required of members in the active National Guard. The reserve corps will be used to recruit the guard companies up to war strength in time of hostility.

Recruiting stations were established in different parts of the city, and the floors in charge of them were urged to get as many men for the reserve corps as they could, in addition to those who wanted to enlist in the active National Guard. The 2d Battalion, 1st Infantry, which is now being organized, is one of the units which are being recruited. In addition some organizations inserted advertisements in the newspapers in an effort to recruit their commands up to full strength.

Aside from the recruiting at headquarters the officers and clerks working hard and late in getting affairs in a state where it needed only the addition of machinery going to have the organization take the field. All details having been prepared, the National Guard is now in a position to take the field just as quickly as it would require to get the men from their homes and in uniform at their armories. The march to the mobilization camp at Fort Myer would take only a short time.

The quartermasters, commissary officers and others who have special arrangements to make for the movement of troops all have been busy with the arrangements for taking the field, and all of the field equipment has been overhauled and is in ship-shape condition for immediate use.

The guardsmen are anxious for field service, and during the week there was no let-up in the numbers which congregated around the Center Market armory, eager to hear of any news from the officers, who would give any indication of a possible troop movement from Washington.

During the regular drill of Company K, 2d Infantry, Wednesday, Capt. Lucien B. Ernest, commanding, turned the organization over alternately to First Sgt. Mainhall, Company L, and Private C. M. Reich, Company K, both of whom were engaged in taking examinations for commissions in the grade of second lieutenant. The drilling of the company was a part of their practical examination, and during the week there was no let-up in the numbers which congregated around the Center Market armory, eager to hear of any news from the officers, who would give any indication of a possible troop movement from Washington.

With authority for the organization of the National Guard for the local brigade given Company K expects to get quite a number of its old members on its reserve rolls, who would give any indication of a possible troop movement from Washington.

Individual cases of instruction will be instructed by Company K, 2d Infantry, Saturday. It is announced, when the command will go either to Rock Creek Park or along the Potomac river. There will be two divisions, the first to go about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and the second about 6:30 in the evening. Full equipment will be carried. Actual field conditions, consisting of sleeping in the small shelter tents, individual cooking, marching, guard duty, skirmishing, signaling, patrolling and sanitation, will obtain. It is declared. The command, it is planned, will be back in the city about 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

As these camps will be held every other Sunday and will be strictly for work, Company K is certain to be in good physical condition and possessed of valuable information when the maneuver time arrives. All members of Company K who desire to go on the trips have been instructed to report Monday evening to receive their field uniforms and other equipment.

Although the Mexican situation is quiet, Capt. Ernest is in receipt of a number of letters from former members of K company, now out of the city, who will re-enlist in the event of the local brigade being called into service. An example of the K company spirit, which these old members still have, is given by the following extract from a letter written by George R. Stillson, former musician of K company.

"The National Guard of Arizona was called out today and the town (Yuma) is in a state of excitement. I don't know how things are coming along there (Washington), but if you receive orders to leave just bring my outfit along and I will meet you in any city west of the Mississippi river. Please telegraph to United States reclamation service, Yuma, Ariz., charges collect."

Having been well organized, the Non-Commissioned Officers' Association of the 1st Infantry is now arranging for a series of lectures by regular and National Guard officers on the duties of the "non-coms." The final step in the completion of the organization was taken at a meeting last Monday night, when officers for the ensuing year were elected. First Sgt. Henry F. Rees was elected.

These survey proceedings must be complete and be accompanied by all the necessary papers, which the responsible officer wishes to present in the case.

The regimental commander will see that these papers have been properly made out and are complete in all respects. In proper form, that the responsible officer wishes to present in the case.

All officers of the National Guard of the District of Columbia who have been property officers and have not made a final complete settlement will do so at once, instituting the proper survey proceedings when necessary."

The annual target season of the National Guard of the District of Columbia will open at the Congress Heights rifle range tomorrow morning. Maj. Thomas E. King, inspector of armory and practice, has been busy during the week just closed getting the tents and other equipment in shape ready for the range. These two companies will be on the range Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and will be followed by the 1st and 2d Battalions, 1st Infantry, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Col. Charles H. Ourand, commanding the 1st Infantry, N. G. D. C., will deliver a lecture at the association meeting last Monday night, when officers for the ensuing year were elected.

The association is said to have the hearty support of all of the company commanders and the men are all working hard to bring this prize to the division fund. The 3d Division of the battalion, commanded by Lieut. Frank W. Sigourney, is particularly active in its campaigning, hardly a drill night passing without four or five men being added to this division alone.

One who is particularly active in the third division in the recruiting campaign is Russell Simmons, who, himself having been a member of the battalion only three weeks, has succeeded in getting nearly ten additional recruits. These evening trips, it was explained, will be taken to give all of the militiamen confidence in themselves to handle the vessel in pilot waters at night.

Mediation is not going to affect any plans I have made," said Capt. Louis C. Vogt, commanding the battery. "I have started out to get a first-class organization, war or no war, and I am going to have it. In addition to the new men joining I am still hammering away at the delinquents and intend to make them come around. The near-war succeeded in bringing most of my men to their guns regularly, but there are still a few who I think don't know a battle has been fought, but before I get through with them they will know what real war is. I have no intention of being hard on the men, but they enlisted for a term of three years, and I will insist on getting three years' service out of them, and will resort to the summary court to do so."

"We will soon be in our new armory up on N street, and it will be more pleasant for the men to turn out for duty. We will have better facilities in every respect to carry on our work. If I haven't got the best organization in the guard now, you can just bet that I will have it then."

Rumor at the battery headquarters has it that Capt. Scott Baker, 6th Field Artillery, U. S. A., will be the next inspector. Capt. Louis T. Boisseau leaves in July. Capt. Baker was appointed captain in the 8th last October, before that being a lieutenant in Battery F, 2d Field Artillery, which is a mountain battery assigned to the 2d Artillery in 1903.

THE NATIONAL GUARD

100 petty officers and enlisted men allowed by law.

It was Lieut. Sigourney who formulated the policy, later adopted by Commander Demps, of making regular Sunday cruises on the naval militia yacht.

The large amount of infantry and heavy artillery drill which has been the practice during the winter months in the drill hall, Commander Demps said, will be suspended, and the men will be kept on the water as much as possible. Each boat crew will be trained, and the spirit of competition will be enthused into every drill with the idea of making the Washington naval militia organization the best in the country. There are a number of whaleboats, motor boats and a steam launch assigned the battalion. In addition to the yacht Sylvia, and these are turned over to the men for instruction purposes, out of which many of them get a good deal of pleasure. When the drills are over on the water the men are not required to turn the boats in immediately, but are permitted to get as much pleasure out of them as they want. In fact, those who do not make the navy trips on the Sylvia do take the boats out on the river for pleasure purposes, at the same time getting practice which will be useful to them in handling such craft in actual service.

In the naval militia the men are taught wireless telegraphy, signaling of all kinds, seamanship, how to handle all kinds of boats, and even steam engineering. During his last few months in the battalion the recruit is taught how to "pull a good oar," how to leave the boat in the least possible time, how to handle the compass, how to tie all manners and forms of knots, and how to take proper care of clothing.

In the next six months or a year the militiaman will advance just as fast as his qualifications for a summer cruise, signaling, wheelman, etc. "Three years' enlistment in the naval militia has been made a post-graduate course in seamanship." The instruction given both in the winter schools and the practical application of the lessons learned in the summer cruise is entirely new and different, and gives rest and relaxation to its absolute change from conditions ashore.

For about two weeks during the summer the battalion is taken aboard one of the United States navy's armored cruisers for a cruise lasting about two weeks, during which the men are taken to some of the most beautiful spots in the world, and are given two or three days shore liberty to see the sights. This year the cruise is being made on the armored cruiser USS Tennessee, flagship of the Atlantic reserve fleet.

At the present time the local naval militia has as its practice boat the converted yacht Sylvia, which, however, is soon to be relieved by a larger vessel, the U. S. S. Wasp. The Wasp is now at New York navy yard undergoing repairs for her voyage to Washington. On her return the Wasp will be turned over to officers and men from the local naval militia.

Probably at 10 o'clock today the Sylvia will put out from her dock at the foot of Water and O streets southwest, for a trip down the river. She is scheduled to return about 8 o'clock. During these voyages the work is divided up into two watches, and the men who are not standing duty either on deck or in the engine room are allowed to lounge about the decks and use their time as they desire.

The Wasp is expected to arrive at Washington within the next few days, and Commander Demps said that he soon would begin the picking of the crew which is to go to New York to assist in bringing the vessel to Washington.

Frank W. Sigourney last week received his commission promoting him from the grade of ensign to that of lieutenant junior grade, in the Naval Battalion. Since his connection with the battalion, Commander Demps said, Lieut. Sigourney has been active in the rebuilding of the organization, and has been the right-hand man of the commanding officer. He received his commission as an ensign just a year ago, and was quick to seize the opportunity for promotion when a vacancy was created.

During his year as an ensign he was aid-de-camp to Commander Demps, and a little more than a month ago organized the third division of the battalion, which has grown by leaps and bounds until it is now the largest division in the organization. He has been untiring in his efforts to keep up the interest of his men, and each Thursday drill night usually has some new competition to present for them to work for. He is working to make this division one of the largest in the battalion, and it was predicted that by the time the battalion starts on its annual cruise to the Tennessee it will have the largest of leading actresses of the Irving Place German Theater Company of New York, which will make its first appearance in Washington at the New National Theater this evening, formerly lived in this city. She is a niece of Col. Fred Albrecht, who is prominent in Masonic circles.

T. Arthur Smith has completed arrangements for a base of the building 1206 G street, as a headquarters for thins theatrical, musical bureau and amusement ticket office. The upper floors will be converted into studios for teachers of dancing, vocal and instrumental music. The lower floor will be the amusement ticket office and sheet music department, conducted by J. Edgar Robinson, formerly with Sanders & Stayman. Mrs. May Randall will, as heretofore, be in charge of the musical bureau.

Seven members of the Grand Lodge executive board of the Theatrical Mechanical Association of the United States and Canada are expected to visit Washington July 10, preceding the three-day session of the board in Philadelphia the early part of July. Washington Lodge, No. 7, has appointed a committee to arrange for their reception and entertainment, as follows: John A. Gayer, chairman; Theodore Miles, Leonard Hubel, Louis Bard, Thomas F. Trundle, Joseph H. Becker and Charles Mueller, a member of the Grand Lodge.

The annual frolic of the association to Baltimore will take place May 10, when the local members will attend the twenty-sixth annual meeting and banquet of the Baltimore branch.

Frank and Oliver Metzger of the Columbia Theater Company will shortly reopen their summer home in Prince Georges county, Md.

The Lyceum Theater success "Sweet Lavender," which M. J. LeMoine made a great hit while a member of Daniel Frohman's famous company, will shortly be produced by the Columbia Players.

Those who saw Miss Shreve's first May carnival fifteen years ago, it is promised, will notice a great difference in the character of dances presented by the "The Fountain of Youth" at the New National Theater May 11 and 12, when all the latest story steps will be seen.

Frank Campeon, the man with the Maxim slinger, who succeeded in murdering "English Eddie" at every performance of "Within the Law," owns a fine estate in Maryland, and is said to be undecided whether to give up the stage and be a farmer or give up the farm and remain an actor.

The Mask and Wig Club will have something new in dancing and in time dancing of the maxixe, a sailor boy chorus, a spectrum dance with the strict appearing wigs to match the color of gowns; a "white minstrel" song and dance in a cotton field scene, and a colorful carnival dance.

Miss Kathleen Mathews, a distinguished and cultured Irish woman, who has come to America in the interest of her native land and a granddaughter of the late Lord Mathews, will present an illustrated lecture entitled "Beautiful Ireland" at the Poli's Theater Sunday evening, May 17. Her descriptions of scenery, and of the life and people of Ireland, will be highly attractive.

Poli's Theater announces three plays for production this month, no one of which has ever before been presented in stock in this city. "The Little Mother," the successful comedy written by Philip Bartholomew, author of "Over Night" and "The Little Mother," one of David Belasco's last season's successes, and "Baby Mine," the comedy written by Margaret Mayo, which has been running for long runs in this country and scored a hit in London and Paris.
